

The North Beach Artists Guild is delighted to share the Ocean Shores experience with the North Coast Interpretive Center. February's Interpretive Center focus is the climate here in Ocean Shores. The Guild was delighted to share art for the billboard at the Interpretive Center. Richard Wills' watercolor, Gray Tones Landscape, speaks to the marine west coast climate with grace and beauty. The Coastal Interpretive Center will be making each of the Guild-created posters available for sale in the Center as well as at the Gallery of Ocean Shores. These will be take home size, perfect for display.

Coastal Interpretive Center Director, Beth Hunkins enlists volunteer Jerry Mergler in mounting the new artwork in spite of the weather. Volunteering at the Interpretive Center takes many talents and all are greatly appreciated. Bring some of your talent and have Beth find a way for you to take part in the Center's many community out reaches. You may have just the skills they need.
